

Doctoral Fellowships

Markets, Ethics, and the Law Doctoral Fellowships

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Tel Aviv University is accepting applications for its 2017-18 doctoral fellowship program. The Center offers grants to PhD students who study the ethical, moral and political aspects of markets, both local and global from all disciplines and fields, including economics, business, social sciences, the humanities and the law.

Grant Amount: $22,000

Candidates must be PhD students at Tel Aviv University (with an approved proposal).

The research fellows will be part of the Center's research group and will take part in the Center's activities. While in residence, the fellows are expected to dedicate their time to research.

Applicants must submit:

- Two letters of recommendation, one of them from the dissertation's supervisor. The letter will include information on the research project; its scientific contribution and its creativity.
- Summary of the dissertation research plan (up to two pages).
- CV, including a list of publications (if applicable)

Deadline for submission of all application materials: Feb 15, 2017.

Application materials should be sent by mail to: safracen@post.tau.ac.il

Additional information about the Center, research fellows and activities can be found at: <http://ethics.tau.ac.il/en/>